

I use XM Radio's traffic and weather stations when I travel; it is a reliable signal and I don't have to divert my attention from driving to find a local station that may or may not have the information I need when I need it. I urge you to resist the NAB's transparent attempt to use the FCC to stifle competition through their petition, 04-160. Let them respond to competition as other businesses are required to do: by improving their services so that consumers might choose them.

If the FCC accedes to this petition it will lend more weight to the perception that the Commission is in the pockets of a powerful lobbying organization, and that protection of the airwaves for public benefit is secondary.
